18. Activate your mobilization to whatever is next.

You, the Masters, and this book are a team.

The free teachings are given by the Masters to humanity to help humanity advance, evolve and mobilize to whatever is next.

Humanity has been in a space of discord for a very long time, but the time has come to change this. This change brings a new way to live, to experience, and to express life, experience, and expression. These are a team that is always delivering outcomes.

These outcomes can be constructive or destructive. We want to have constructive outcomes and we do not want to have destructive outcomes.

Outcomes are the result of activities, processes, and actions that we take. If our activities, processes and actions are destructive, we will have destructive outcomes. If our activities, processes, and actions are constructive, we will have constructive outcomes; as simple as that.

Constructiveness attracts constructiveness, destruction attracts destruction.

The Masters and us need to work together to enable maximum constructiveness. Each one of us has a structure of life, experience, and expression which is meant to deliver specific outcomes. These outcomes require much attention to guarantee being constructive. The Masters, as part of our structure of life, experience, and expression, show us the way to help us do our part.

Our part is very small in relation to the part that the rest of our structure of life, experience, and expression carry out. The rest of our structure of life, experience, and expression carries out 99% of the activities, processes, and actions required to live, experience, and express life, experience, and expression, and we only carry out 1%.

The Masters help humanity as needed to deliver their maximum potential.

The maximum potential of something is a level of perfection that can give maximum means to deliver constructiveness.

Constructiveness benefits by having positivity, understanding, patience, determination, perseverance, discipline, obedience, serenity, stillness, relaxation, and focus. Constructiveness opens spaces, times, and opportunities that enhance and stabilize everything, and this generates constructive chain reactions that deliver countless constructive outcomes.

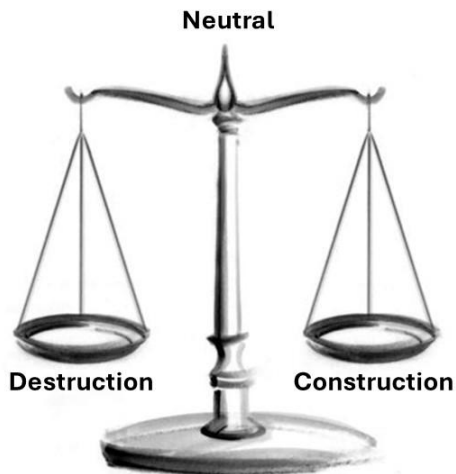

When you are constructive, you deliver everything that is for you.

When you are destructive, you do not deliver what is for you.

Constructive and destructive are opposites.

Life, experience, and expression are means to learn to be constructive, and for this purpose they use destruction and construction to teach us the difference between them. The idea is to identify the destruction, position it in a neutral space to neutralize it, and then to mobilize to constructiveness. This is a scale that the Masters use to determine where we are in relation to destruction, neutrality and construction.

The scale is represented in a balance as follows:

It can also be represented as follows:

Both representations are valid, and there are many other ways to represent this in a drawing. Another example is a simple line as follows:

Independently of the way that it is represented, what matters is to know the following:

1. Destruction is always positioned on the left.
2. Neutral is always in between destruction and construction.
3. Construction is always positioned on the right.

The reason for this is because this is how the Masters teach it.

Destruction, neutral and construction give a complete teaching that help us with being constructive.

The Masters, us, and these free teachings, deliver means to be constructive.

Destruction, neutral, and construction are needed, but they are needed as follows:

1. Destruction is needed in 10%. This percentage guarantees using destruction only as a means to destroy the obsolete, whatever we do not need anymore, whatever is not ours, and whatever damage us.
2. Neutral is needed to separate destruction from construction, and to give the maximum potential.
3. Construction is needed in 90%. This percentage guarantees the delivery of the best of us.

The Masters are always attentive to our activities, processes, and actions to help us as needed.

The Masters teach 4 major teachings as follows:

1. Languages of life, experience, and expression.
2. Structure of life, experience, and expression.
3. Inner world.
4. External world.

These 4 teachings are written in easy practical books that take us step-by-step into resolving issues and acquiring elements of life, experience, and expression that allow us to be constructive.

The Masters also give ways to expand the teachings given in the 4 books as required by each person.

The Masters know what we need to learn, this is part of their work within our structure of life, experience, and expression. They do their best to help us do our best.

One last explanation before we mobilize to the practices, is to know the steps required to learn the teachings from the Masters. These are:

1. The first step is the free teachings.
2. The second step is to learn the languages of life, experience, and expression.
3. The third step is to learn the structure of life, experience, and expression.
4. The fourth step is to learn the inner world.
5. The fifth step is to learn the external world.

Simultaneous from second step is to receive from the Masters any other teachings that are for you.

In the next pages, you find practices that prepare you to mobilize to the second step.

1. Activate your subtlety.

This part of the free teachings is quite powerful. It contains only one practice which is an affirmation that has to be repeated 3 times in silence and 3 times out loud. The affirmation is:

I activate my subtlety to the maximum measure.

This affirmation begins the chain reaction required to activate your subtlety to the maximum measure in due course.

2. Activate your matter.

This activation involves a 1-minute attention in the heart. This attention activates matter in the entire structure of life, experience, and expression.

This attention in the heart is done only once with the intention of activating your matter in your entire structure of life, experience, and expression. In this level, you do not need to know the details of this structure.
